Potential Being Tested 2nd Oil 'Gusher' Blows In

The second gusher for Milam County was brought in Thursday afternoon and oil patch rumor has it that it may top the first one in potential following weekend tests. Rumor in oil circles is that this well should produce in the neighborhood of 1,000 barrels per day and a tremendous amount of gas. The well is located on a 55-acre tract owned by J. D. and Lucille Peoples about a mile and a half south of Milano. It was drilled by B&B Drilling Co. of Milano and W. C. Pemberton & Associates. It was drilled in the Austin Chalk MILO HARVEST is underway in the county, and the golden grain is being hauled in to elevators and boxcars here. Farmers had good weather for their crop, but the price of sorghum leaves much to be desired. Some growers will be lucky to break even this year.

formation and struck pay at about 5,000 feet. Pemberton told The Herald that it "rattled the iron when it came up." He said he believes the Peoples well will be even better than the Ashley-Lindstetter which was tested at 1,226 barrels in May.

The Peoples is located three or four miles from the A-L in a new field. The A-L is located approximately two miles east of Milano near Hwy. 79.

Pemberton said there are now two gas lines in the county to handle output from wells, and this will be a real boost to the economy since the gas is bringing about $1.80 per thousand.

Activity increased in the county courthouse records offices, as news of the two big producers spread in oil circles. Pemberton said of the county's 600,000 acres, about half of it is under lease. The latest discovery is still within a 20-mile strip extending across the county where oil has been found.

Pemberton & Associates have several other pay wells located in the Milano area that "look tremendous," Pemberton said. Some eight or ten wells have been drilled and are expected to be brought in soon. They are in the 6,000 foot range.

Rumor also has it that a Smack-over test will be drilled in the Milano area in 1977. The Smack-over test will explore 17 different formations known to be oil and gas bearing in Texas. These formations include the Georgetown, Buda Lime, Woodbine, Eagleford, Nacitosh, and the A-B-C-D Navarro formations.

Building Permits Soar

Building permits issued in Rockdale during July totaled $128,450 and upped 1977's seven-month total to $1,913,002, surpassing the old record of $1,859,675 set in 1973. The 1973 total was for all 12 months and, with five months remaining in the year, 1977 will become Rockdale's first-ever two million dollar year. The city has recorded only two other million dollar building years, 1954 and 1967.

Fish Grows In Trunk

A 1972 auto with a 25-pound catfish in the trunk was pulled out of Lake LBJ near Wirtz Dam last Saturday afternoon. The car must have been in the lake for quite some time because the catfish found in the trunk was too big to swim in or out. Officers decided the fish had lived in the car some time, growing to its present size.

Cooling To Cost

Georgetown residents who are enjoying the comfort of air conditioning, have a shock coming with their September bills. LCRA, coupled with the blistering hot sun, is putting the heat on the customers, raising their rates and blood pressure at the same time. The city will be charged with an additional 32 percent fuel adjustment during September, that on the heels of a 68 percent adjustment during August.

Lott Clinic Dedicated

Lott citizens dedicated their new clinic building Sunday afternoon with open house in the building that formerly housed a library. Rosebud doctors will see patients at the clinic on a five-day schedule. The clinic was furnished with revenue sharing funds and sales tax rebates.

Chili Cook-Off Set

Already 13 contestants have signed up for Thorndale's annual big chili cook-off set for Sunday, August 28. The day will also feature handicraft displays, games of competition, concessions of all kinds, and other events.

Alert Woman Puts Skids On Burglary

The alertness of a Buckholts area woman was credited for the arrest of two persons who were subsequently charged with burglary after they had attempted to rob her home.

Milam County sheriff's deputy Charles West said Shelia White, 18, of Marlin, and Ernest Riley, 38, of Temple were charged with burglary of a habitation last week

Commissioners

Milam County commissioners will meet Monday at 9 a.m. and the agenda includes consideration of the assistant county attorney's resignation, a request for more money for feeding prisoners, a request from Milano for funds for playground equipment, relocation of the voter registration office, and consideration of a report from the county tax assessor-collector.

Museum Committee

The Milam County Museum committee will meet at 11 Tuesday morning, August 9, at the museum. All members and interested persons are invited to attend.

in connection with an incident at the home of Mrs. Shirley Hill of Rt. 2, Buckholts.

According to West, Mrs. Hill drove up to her house and saw White and Riley coming out carrying two sewing machines. When they saw her coming, they jumped into their car and drove away, while Mrs. Hill called the sheriff's office.

The couple got away, but not before Mrs. Hill noted their car license number, and was able to describe the car to officers. The sheriff's office learned that the car was registered to White, and a warrant was issued for her arrest.

She came in and gave herself up, and gave the officers information that led to the arrest of Riley in Temple Tuesday. He was transferred to the county jail and his bond was set at $10,000. White's bond was reduced to $1,000 and she was released.

West said Hill's alertness was an invaluable assistance in the apprehension.

He also noted that since the arrests last month of three suspects charged with a rash of burglaries, the number of burglaries reported to the sheriff's office has sharply declined.

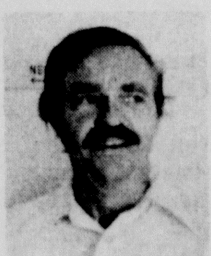

Grassfires On Increase; Fire Warnings Out

Grassfires are on the increase as hot, dry weather continues to plague Central Texas and residents are warned that trash burning or cigarette throwing could result in disaster.

Cameron volunteer firemen were called out about 3 p.m. Thursday to a grassfire on the highway right-of-way at the intersection of Hwy. 77 and FM 485.

Carelessly-tossed cigarettes and matches, and indiscriminate trash burning were cited by firemen as having the greatest potential for starting fires in the tinder-dry countryside.

Property Owners Respond...

We are pleased to note the long - anticipated paving program in Northeast Cameron is to begin as more than three-fourths of units have signed for their part.

And CDA Director A. W. McCullin is discussing with the City Council the paving project scheduled in West Cameron later this year.

So things are shaping nicely for the improvement of what no town or city never quite gets enough of. . . curbed, paved streets.

The co-operation of residents in these areas of town, which are basically long established neighborhoods, is commendable and good for street safety, property improvement and beautification and drainage.

Without doubt, paving and curbing are next only to need for housing starts in the priorities of civic improvement of a town with the traditional beauty of large trees, styled-up older homes, new subdivisions and lawns attractive to people driving by.

Property owners are to be commended.

Fast Fire Fighters...

Well, they did it again. We mean the Cameron Volunteer Fire Department's men's pumper team, which won first place in the Elgin Frontier Days competition.

The CVFD ladies team has also won a number of competitions.

This team which most recently won is: Jim Lafferty, Thomas Harwell, Leslie Bruedigan, team captain Henry Horelica and Jim Delony. The team of Bruedigan, Harwell and Lafferty also won second place in three-man team competition.

This tells a lot about the morale of Cameron Volunteer Fire Dept. personnel. They are winners because they want to win, know how to win and have the equipment to work with.

Not only are they a winner, but CVFD happens to be one of the best volunteer groups in towns this size. If they are quick in contests, they will be just as quick saving a grass-fire from spreading, containing a house fire or keeping a small blaze from incinerating a whole block.

That is the significance of a well - trained fire-fighting team. And from the contests and the thousands of hours volunteered for fire service, Cameron has winners who as easily save property and lives.

They deserve all the praise they can get.

Panama Canal Treaty

The negotiations on a new treaty for the Panama Canal, in progress for several months, have drawn increased attention. Here are questions and answers on the current situation.

Q: Why do the Panamanians want a new Panama Canal treaty?

A: The 10-mile-wide Panama Canal Zone divides their country in half and is owned, operated and ruled by a foreign nation, the United States; Panamanians cannot traverse the zone without coming under the civil authority of the U.S. The canal and surrounding land is operated under a treaty which says it will be run by another country in perpetuity.

Panamanians know this treaty was signed 70 years ago between the United States and a new country whose creation was largely the result of American power. A Frenchman with a financial stake in the old canal drafted and signed the treaty for Panama.

Private business is not allowed in the zone. The U.S. Government controls all facilities servicing Panamas deepwater ports. The U.S. exercises power over with a police force, courts and jails which enforce American law on Panamanians as well as Americans.

The Panamanian has observed the contrast between the subsidized standard of living and lifestyle of the American Zonians and the lower income levels of fellow Panamanian citizens. Panamanians compose about two-thirds of the work force in the canal, but take home one-third of the total wages.

Objections also are raised to the stationing of U.S. troops in the zone for other reasons than to defend the canal -- something which is not permitted by the 1903 treaty. These factors, and others, combine to make the Panama Canal a political, economic, social, patriotic and emotional issue to the Panamanians and they believe a new treaty recognizing their rights is essential.

Q: What is the viewpoint of Americans opposed to treaty negotiations?

A: They assert that American money, ingenuity and hard work built the accomplishment of unprecedented scale. It was "the moon shot" of the early 1900s. It is a source of immediate pride, and it's ours.

The treaty says the United States can operate the canal and surrounding zone "as if it were sovereign," and the treaty is not subject to negotiation. There is no compelling reason to negotiate.

Opponents to a new treaty also say that the canal is too vital both strategically and economically to give up, in particular to a small country that is governed by what many allege to be leftist and undemocratic. They also say the United States is yielding to pressure from radicals who are trying to appease anti-American and Communist influences in Panama and the Western Hemisphere.

Fears also are expressed about the loss of American jobs in the zone. Canal Zone residents are concerned about their future. The average American may never see the canal, but he or she immediately associates it with hard-won accomplishment and national pride. As in the case of the Panamanian's viewpoint, these factors combine to make the issue emotional.

Q: What does the rest of Latin America think about the Panama Canal issue?

A: Latin America, often divided, is united on the issue of the need for a new Panama Canal Treaty. Latin American nations unanimously oppose continued U.S. control of the Panama Canal under the 1903 treaty terms. When Mrs. Carter recently visited Latin American countries, this issue was raised consistently.

Latin America sees the canal and the 1903 treaty as a relic of American colonialism. The existence of a U.S. - controlled canal, subject to perpetual rule, is a festering wound to them. It revives memories of past intervention in Latin American affairs.

Q: If the Panama Canal stirs up such strong emotions in the United States, and is sometimes an unpopular cause to embrace politically, why negotiate for a new treaty?

A: A new treaty is being negotiated because it is the opinion of the Carter Administration, Latin America and nations of the Third World, that the terms of the 1903 treaty no longer reflect the many changes which have occurred in Panama, the U.S. and the world in the past decades. We are negotiating because it is believed this is the best way to protect America's basic national interest in an open, efficient neutral and secure canal.

The canal is important to the United States, though less than in earlier years, and we believe a new treaty with arrangements more acceptable to Panama will be more protective of the Canal than the present treaty, which is outmoded and a source of hostility.

Q: Is the Panama Canal the sovereign property of the United States?

A: No. The United States has all the rights, power, and authority to conduct its activities in the zone, "as if it were sovereign", not as the sovereign.

Q: What is the economic status of the canal?

A: The canal is still an important link for the trade routes, but the economic picture is more difficult now. In 1975, about 12 percent of all United States export and import waterborne tonnage used the Panama route.

The canal carries 7 percent of our trade between the East and West Coasts and 8 percent of our foreign trade is in canal traffic -- 1 percent of our Gross National Product. However, the canal's economic status is such that some economists say it is no longer as valuable as in the first two decades of existence, but in recent years it has run at a loss.

From 1973-76, the canal lost about $29 million and during the same period canal traffic decreased from 39 ships a day to 33. In November, 1976, President Ford approved a 19.5% toll increase to try to lower canal deficits -- the third toll increase since 1974, when the rates were raised for the first time since the canal was opened in 1914.

Q: What are some of the factors behind the drop in daily traffic?

A: The new, larger ships -- such as the supersized cargo ships -- cannot go through the 63-year-old waterway. Another factor is the so-called "Minibridge system." The minibridge concept allows steamship companies to have a single rate for a container that is sent from the East Coast of the United States to the West Coast by rail, and then by ship to the Far East. This new system was inaugurated in 1972 and in its first 18 months the ports lost more than 50,000 containers to minibridge traffic and most of this traffic would otherwise have used the Panama Canal.

Q: Militarily, does the canal have an important strategic role?

A: Not since the United States established a two-ocean navy, and built aircraft carriers that are too big to go through the canal. However, it is still an important defense asset to the United States because it does facilitate the movement of military supplies.

Q: Why is the canal's strategic importance now diminished?

A: Because larger aircraft carriers cannot move through it and submarines would have to surface during transit. Also, the canal is vulnerable to attack. Military officials generally agree that it would be extremely difficult to prevent canal closure by an air attack or by skilled sabotage.

Q: How large is the military establishment in the Canal Zone?

A: The United States is responsible for the defense of the Canal and Canal Zone. There is a military community of about 23,500 including dependents. Actual combat and support forces number about 9,400 and there are four administrative installations in the zone and 22 submarine bases.

The Canal Zone is the headquarters for the Joint United States Southern Command. This office directs military assistance programs in other Latin American countries. Also in the Zone are headquarters of the U.S. Army Forces Southern Command, the United States Naval Forces Southern Command, the United States Air Forces Southern Command. They operate schools for Latin American armed forces students.

Q: What assurances do we have that, should Panama take over operation of the canal, that it could be run efficiently and without sharp increases in rates?

A: Under the proposed terms of a new treaty now being discussed, the United States would in effect have until the year 2000 to train Panama in operations of the canal. Since the canal is so vital to Panama's economy, sharp increases in rates would drive down its use and, therefore, only result in diminishing revenues for Panama.

Panama's national and economic self-interest rely on operating the canal efficiently, with neutrality, and with reasonable rates to encourage continued use by all nations. Panama must keep the canal competitive with other transportation modes.

The rat weighed 1 1/2 pounds and measured 19 inches from nose to tip of tail. Mr. Wimberly said the effectiveness of the 1080 DDT poison has been negated slightly by cold weather, as rats do not move about in such weather. The program here is a permanent one to control typhus.

Voyagers Want No Part Of Violence In Outer Space

The United Nations wants no part of that interplanetary violence depicted in "Star Wars."

U.N. delegates have recorded messages in 12 languages on copper-plated records designed to be carried aloft in the Voyager 1 and 2 spacecraft slated for launch in late August and early September.

"If an advanced civilization in the outer reaches of the solar system finds the spacecraft, it should have no trouble figuring out how to play the records and decipher them," says a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman.

Propelled by Jupiter

The two Voyagers will first explore Jupiter, then accelerated by that planet's gravitational force will head for Saturn, the National Geographic Society says. On their 10-year-long space odyssey, they will take a look at several of the moons surrounding the two planets, and the second craft may go far beyond Saturn to Uranus and possibly Neptune.

Instruments on the two Voyagers will beam pictures back to earth and perform scientific experiments.

Voyager 1 will make its closest approach to Jupiter--about 110,000 miles from the surface of the planet--on March 5, 1979. It will transmit pictures as early as December 1978.

The second spacecraft, following a different path that its predecessor, will pass 399,000 miles from the center of Jupiter at its closest approach on July 10, 1979.

Voyager 2 will continue to Uranus, arriving in January 1986, only if the primary Saturn mission has been performed successfully. Because of the alignment of the outer planets at the time, it could also visit Neptune.

"By exploring outer planets like Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, we can go back in time and sample the conditions from which the sun and the inner planets are believed to have condensed," says NASA public affairs officer Nicholas Panagakos.

All in Jovian Family

Uranus and neighboring Jupiter, Saturn, and Neptune belong to a subfamily in the solar system called the Jovian planets. All rotate furiously, have dense atmospheres, and consist of far lighter elements than earthlike, terrestrial, planets such as Mars and Venus.

Four of Jupiter's moons, Io, Europa, Ganymede, and Callisto, are interesting in their own right. Io and Europa are nearly the size of earth's moon or larger. Callisto is the size of the planet Mercury, and Ganymede is even larger.

Io, closest in of the large moons and the most reflective object in the solar system, is of special interest. Normally orange, it has been seen to brighten for about 15 minutes as it comes out from Jupiter's shadow. One explanation: A gas, possibly ammonia or methane, "snows" out of Io's atmosphere while in the shadow, then swiftly evaporates in the sunlight.

Io also arouses interest because its orbital motion somehow modulates many of Jupiter's awesome bursts of radio energy.

Titan, Saturn's largest moon, is unique because it is the only satellite in the solar system known to have an appreciable atmosphere.

Restricted-Use Pesticides Call For Certification

Persons involved in the application of restricted-use pesticides, either commercially or non-commercially, to control aquatic plants and/or animals are to be certified by the Texas Water Quality Board, according to a TWQB announcement.

It is anticipated that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will classify all pesticides for either restricted use or general use by October. After that time application of restricted-use pesticides may be handled only by certified and/or licensed applicators.

Certification will be granted on the basis of tests to be administered by the Board's staff and on certain other conditions which are specified in the federal law. Certifications will expire on Dec. 31 of the year in which they are issued.

According to David Barker who is in charge of the program for the TWQB, persons who use pesticides to control aquatic pests should check with that agency concerning implementation of the pesticide program. Information and materials may be obtained from his office, P.O. Box 13246, Austin 78711.

Barker stressed that the TWQB has jurisdiction for the use of pesticides only for control of aquatic plants and animals. Jurisdiction for other uses rests with other agencies: The Texas Animal Health Commission (for applicators involved in animal health and pest control), the State Department of Health Resources (for uses involving public health pest control), the Texas Structural Pest Control Board (for persons using pesticides in buildings, commercially and non-commercially), and the State Agriculture Department for other uses such as agricultural pest control, seed-treatment, forest pest control and other similar applications.

947 Million Cans Recycled By Alcoa

More than 947 million used aluminum beverage cans were recovered and recycled by Aluminum Company of America during the first six months of 1977. This is a 38.6 percent increase over the first half of 1976.

Collectors returned 41.2 million pounds of aluminum, and were paid $7 million. The highest collection month was June, when almost 200 million aluminum beverages cans were reclaimed.

Alcoa received 70 million pounds of cans for recycling in 1976--more than seven cans for every person in the United States--and expects to recover 85 million pounds in 1977.

Alcoa and other recyclers of aluminum cans collected 209 million pounds of aluminum cans in 1976, or nearly 4.8 million cans--about 22 cans for each American. This is a 19.5 percent increase over 1975 collections.

William Hill, Alcoa's corporate manager for aluminum can reclamation, said:

"Beverage can recycling has become a lot more than wishful thinking. It's a dramatic success, and an outstanding example of what can be achieved when basic economics are applied to the problem of recovering a valuable resource--aluminum--for reuse.

"Alcoa and other involved companies, including many beverage wholesalers, pay up to 17 cents a pound to consumers who return cans for recycling, the companies, the public and the environment all benefit. And, recycling aluminum saves 95 percent of the energy needed to produce metal from ore."

Schedules Announced For Yoe, OJT Band Practice

Band directors Jerry Bartley and Gary Beach have announced rehearsal schedules for the high school and junior high bands with Monday, August 15 the first day of summer practice for both bands.

The O.J. Thomas band (7th and 8th grades) will rehearse in the high school band hall each morning from 9-11:30. Band members should wear light clothing as one-half of the period will be used for marching.

Rehearsals will continue from the 15th through the 26 of August. Beach, junior high director, is expecting an enthusiastic turnout with an attitude to better their good record of last year.

The Yoe High band will begin at 7 p.m. August 15, and will rehearse until 9:30 on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. On Wednesdays rehearsals will be from 5-6:30 p.m. and on Fridays from 4-5:30 p.m. The band will march on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays only.

The remainder of the time will be used working on new "rock" music as well as traditional melodies including "The Young Yoe" used to help inspire Coach Max Graham's football team toward Friday night victories, Bartley said.

Monday, August 22, will be the first day of beginner band (sixth grade and new 7th and 8th graders). Rehearsal times will be announced at the beginner instrument drive on Tuesday evening, August 9 from 6:30 - 9 p.m. at the high school band hall.

All beginner students and their parents should meet with the band directors Tuesday evening for selection of instruments. Students are asked not to purchase any instrument without directors approval.

Al-Anon Meetings Held At St. Edward On Wednesday Nights

Persons with a drinking problem or relatives concerned about a family drinking problem are invited to attend Al-Anon meetings, which are held at St. Edward Hospital library on Wednesday nights.

The Al-Anon attempts to provide insight and understanding into the problems of its own members. If a family wishes the drinking member to stop drinking and join AA, they might first try Al-Anon.

Adjustments To Elastic Makes Waistline Fit

Easy adjustments to elastic at the waistline makes it fit, says Becky Culp, area clothing specialist, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

For ready-made skirts and pants that are too large or too tight in the waistline, her simple steps create "instant" comfort and attraction.

Her "clues" for detecting a too-large-elasticized waistline:

It will stand away from or fall below the natural waistline. When worn with a belt, the waistline will gather or fold underneath.

If the elasticized waistline is too tight, it will bind uncomfortably and cut into the body. Side seams and darts may pull and curve toward the waistline, especially if the garment is smaller along the front waistline than the figure.

To adjust either misfit, first compare the natural waistline measurement to the garment's.

Depending upon personal preference, garment fabric and elastic type, the garment waistband should equal to -- or slightly less (up to 1 1/2") than -- the body's.

An elasticized waistband should be large enough to stretch over the hips but relax to fit snugly at the waist, the specialist says.

Next examine the waistband to determine if the elastic is loose in the casing or is stitched to fit along the waistline seam.

If the elastic is loose it can be turned within the casing and the elastic edges can be felt above the waistband seam. If stitched in the seam, the elastic may be visible along waistband seam allowance.

Altering 'Run-Through' Elastic

To alter elastic that is loose ("run-through") in the waistband, feel along the waistband to find the seam in the elastic. Rip the waistband seam two inches at this location.

Pull elastic out of the seam and adjust as needed by splicing in extra elastic or overlapping the elastic seam more. Slip the elastic back into the waistband and sew the waistband seam back together.

Altering Stitched Elastic

To alter elastic stitched in the waistband seam, rip the waistband seam and elastic all around or just in the garment front or back.

Increases in elastic length may be more flattering in the front only, while decreases are usually more flattering in the back only. Splice or overlap elastic as needed. Distribute garment fullness evenly along elastic and stitch together along waistband edge. Restitch waistband edge to garment.

ISABELLE FARRELL

Country Dinner Playhouse Sets Run For 'Cabaret'

Isabelle Farrell, multi-faceted actress, singer, and dancer, will star in the Dacus-Shurr musical production of "Cabaret", at Austin's Country Dinner Playhouse from August 2 through September 4.

Isabelle Farrell is already a favorite with Austin theatre-goers for her roles in "Sweet Charity" and "Irma La Douce" at the Playhouse.

The setting for "Cabaret" is pre-war Germany, where Sally Bowles (Isabelle Farrell) meets Clifford Bradshaw (Scott Chamberlin) at the Kit Kat Club. The story involves their ensuing romance and the poignant relationship between Fraulein Schneider, the lady who runs the boarding house where the two young lovers live, and a Jewish gentleman, played by Lloyd Harris (Benjamin Franklin in "1776").

In the tradition of "Fiddler on the Roof" and "1776" "Cabaret" is directed and choreographed by Buff Shurr, who has staged and performed leading roles in over 100 musicals and plays, including a dozen Broadway and off-Broadway shows. He has directed such stars as John Davidson, Ethel Merman, Ruta Lee, and Joel Grey.

Salach Places Third In Smallbore Championship

Mike Salach placed third in the junior division of the Texas State Rifle Association's 42nd Annual Smallbore Outdoor Prone Championship held at the Trinity Rifle Club on July 23-24, in Dallas, Texas.

Mike shot a 3167 out of a possible 3200 to finish 7th in the Expert class and 14th in the tournament.

Now - the most unique campsite in the world - one on water. It is called Camp-A-Float. The "Campsite" is a large pontoon boat, made to carry a recreational vehicle. It converts your camper to houseboat for a day, week or weekend on Lake Ouachita near Hot Springs, Arkansas.

The concept is ideal for the serious hunter, fisherman or family that enjoys camping and being on the water. You simply take your campsite with you and once you've located that hot fishing or hunting area of the lake, you can remain right there day or night.

The Camp-A-Float can accommodate any recreational vehicle up to 31 feet in length and weighing less than 11,500 pounds.

Powered by an outboard marine engine controlled from a helmstand, the boat is equipped with 100 gallon fresh water tanks and 100 gallon sewage tanks which connect to your own camper's systems.

The deck area is surrounded with safety railings and gates and an 8' by 13' awning provides shade for the entire front area of the boat.

Your RV, now a houseboat, is free to explore the wilderness waters of Lake Ouachita, created in 1950, the lake has become famous for its natural and unspoiled beauty.

The entire 1,000 mile shoreline is undeveloped public land so you can hunt or fish anywhere. Explore the 242 islands that dot the lake - camp in a new location every night. Ouachita is a sportsman's dream come true.

Any recreational vehicle within the length and weight limitations can be secured aboard the Camp-A-Float. This includes motor homes, pickup campers, vans, travel trailers, pop-ups and even homemade units. Two vehicles can be loaded aboard the same boat if they meet the loading specifications.

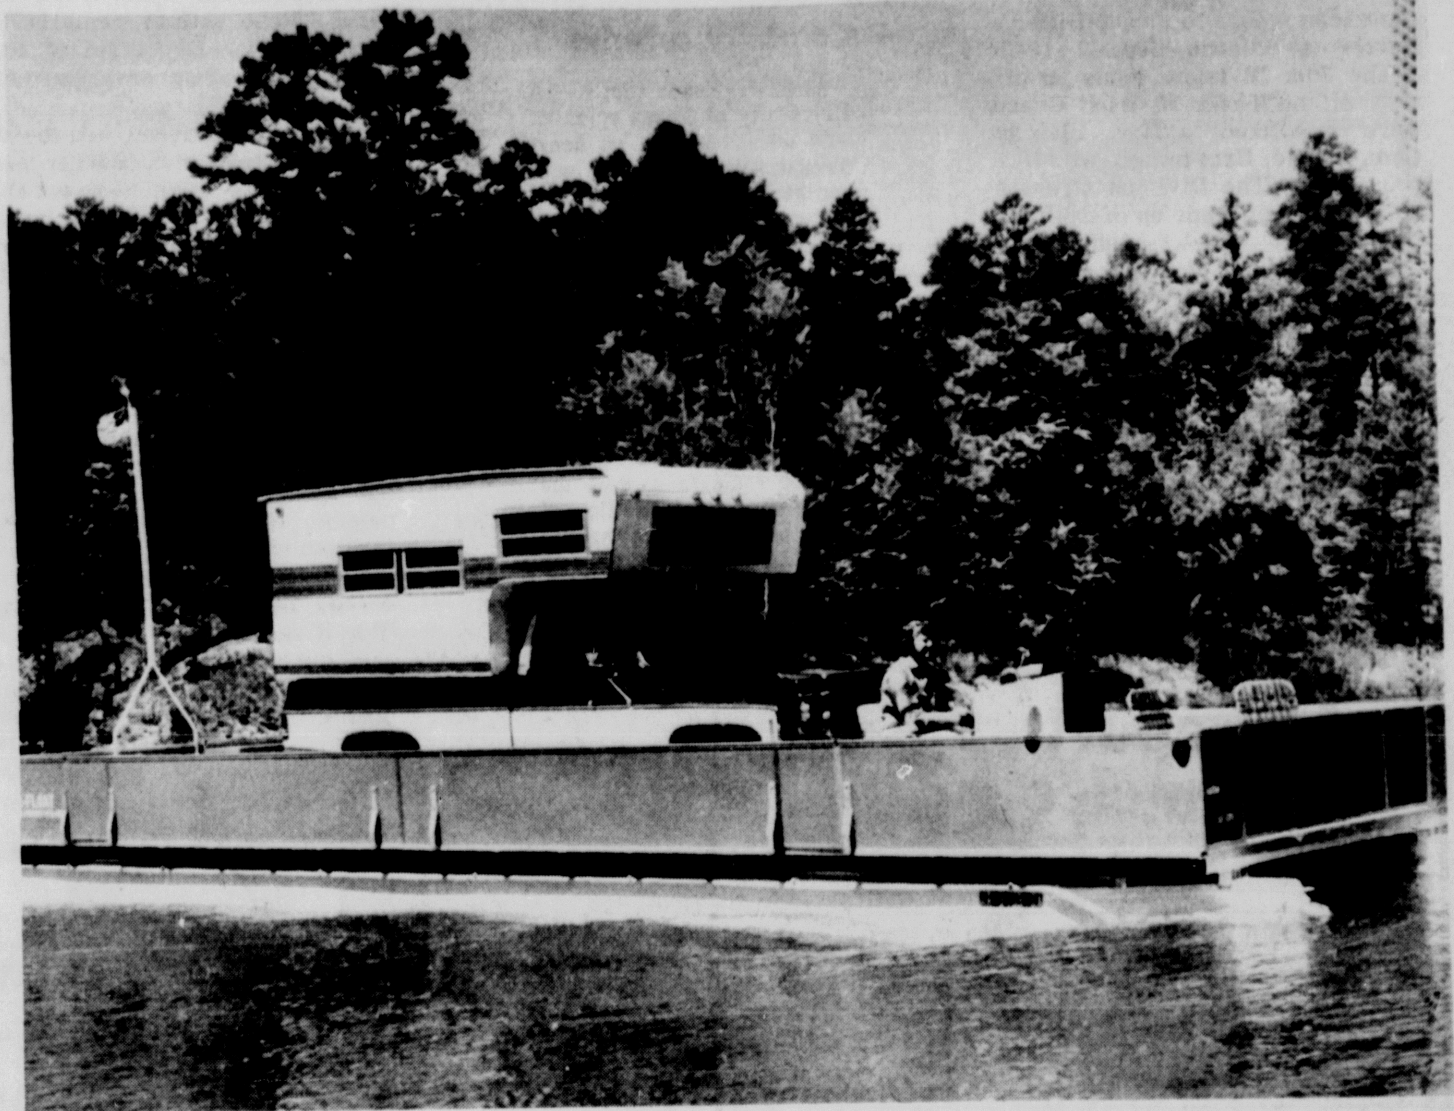

No prior boating experience is needed. A short checkout cruise before departure allows even the novice complete control of his floating campsite.

Most users find the greatest experience of the trip the sense of freedom and total solitude. Wives and mothers find the venture unique in that the family can enjoy individual pursuits yet everyone remains together making it a family vacation. Camp-A-Float - perfect for a group of hunters or fishermen, perfect for the family.

In season rental rates are $40 per day or $250 a week plus gasoline. Out of season rates are $30 per day or $190 per week. For those who need one, a fully equipped RV can be rented for $17.50 per day. These units will sleep 8 to 10 adults. Often two couples rent one unit together for the fun of a joint vacation at half the cost. For reservations or more information call 1-800-435-2944.

Coronary arteries

AUSTIN, Texas (Spl.) — A University of Texas scientist who does research on heart disease says the trouble with coronary arteries is that they are so small a wooden match stick would fit snugly inside one. Dr. Walter K. Long says an obstruction does not have to be very large to block an artery. A common block is the formation of plaque, a complex growth of smooth muscle tissue and other constituents. "Like scale in a pipe, the plaque slows down the flow of blood through the artery, and slowly flowing blood tends to clot," says the UT

An important part of your electric bill.

Time was when your electric bill probably was "just another item" in the family budget. You knew from the year before about what to expect.

Regretfully, this is no longer true. As the costs of producing and supplying electricity have gone up Texas Power & Light has had no choice but to ask its customers to pay more for what they use. The electric bill has become a large item in most family budgets.

You and each member of your family are important parts of your electric bill. How you use appliances and equipment makes a big difference in the amounts of your bills. Make a family project of keeping the air conditioner thermostat set at about 78°. Operate the clothes washer, dryer and dishwasher only with full loads. Turn the television off when you leave it. And check around the house for other energy-saving, dollar-saving measures. Texas Power & Light is working to assure an adequate supply of electric power for all of its customers and to help them get the most value for their electric dollars.

It's The Smallest

The smallest continent is the Australian mainland, with an area of about 2,940,000 square miles.
The smallest known star is called LP 327-186. A "white dwarf," it's 100 light-years away, with a diameter only half that of the moon.
The smallest amount of natural gas on reserve in a long time is what we have now. Domestic supplies are dwindling. Proved reserves are at their lowest levels since 1955 and some industries have been suffering shut-downs because of shortages.
